VET RECOMMENDATION:

This week's recommendation comes from Vanessa Melrose:

"We go to Dr. Young in San Marcos at Discovery Valley Animal Hospital. he's wonderful! I recommend him to all my clients with rats, and other people I know with rats, too!

He's an exotic vet but does also treat domestics. every time I go in, there's an interesting patient waiting for their appointment [kangaroo and beaver last time I was in!]. he's wonderful with rats and certainly has a soft spot for them. I'd be happy to be a reference so if/when your adopters go to him, they can use my name. Dr. Young is very familiar with us! "

Did You Know...

Agouti doesn't refer necessarily to a color, but to the banding found on the individual hairs of rat fur. The letter "A" is used for the agouti gene and the letter "a" for non-agouti. If a rat is AA or Aa they will have the banding present on the hairs, but if they are aa they will not. Black, Russian Blue, Beige, and Mink are all examples of non-agouti colors. Agouti, Cinnamon, Fawn, and Blue-Agouti are all examples of agouti colors and you will notice banding on the hairs.

Say "Hello" to Pancake. He's a little bit sleepy.

As always, feel free to color him in and send us a copy.
